

“Rethinking the Urban Landscape”

Newcastle City Library

3rd - 17th August, 2015

Rethinking the Urban Landscape argues the case to commit investment to 'green infrastructure' in the early stages of city and regeneration planning. Curated by The Building Centre and the Landscape Institute, the exhibition sets out to show that with long-term landscape planning cities can become healthier, safer and happier places to be - from reduced risk of flooding, to countering the 'invisible killer' of bad air quality, to weaving more enjoyable and inspiring environments throughout the urban fabric.

Projects featured in the exhibition examine the challenges faced in today's urban environments and looks at how landscape planning can create safer and healthier places. Key projects such as the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, The Garden Bridge and King's Cross Central, alongside other landscape developments, are featured in the exhibition. The exhibition, first held at The Building Centre and then showcased at Ecobuild, is now travelling across the UK.

An evening reception will be held on Wednesday 5th August 2015 in the Berwick Hall of Newcastle City Library from 6 to 8pm. We look forward to seeing you there.
